

A Weekend on the Front Lines

No, I haven't run off and joined the Army, but Hubby and I did spend a weekend on the front lines. With a week-old 5 pound baby and a 16-month-old boy full of energy running around, our daughter needed a few extra hands, so off we went. (Yes, you know she had to twist our arms to go.)

All of my babies were HUGE compared with this little bundle. Our smallest one weighed 8 lbs., 9 oz., so when I lifted this tiny one—well, I'm pretty sure my coffee cup weighs more.

As I rocked & snuggled with Josie, I was once again amazed at the majesty of our creator! How can something so small be so perfectly formed? How can anyone believe that this all happens by chance?

The sweet coos of Josie are precious, but when Cody looks up at me from his crib in the dim light of morning with sleepy eyes & blows me kisses...well, that's just the BEST!

God has truly blessed our family!! Thank you for the ability to go and do nothing but rock and play with little ones for a couple of days. It was wonderful!

Ok, now on to important stuff!

The Week of July 15-21 is:

- Hemp History Week
- National Ventriloquism Week
- Magician's Rabbit Week

Some Celebrations only last a day.

15th-Be a Dork Day

Gummi Worm Day

Give Something Away Day

Robin Hood Day

16th-National Guinea Pig Day

National Personal Chef's Day

Strawberry Rhubarb Wine Day

Woodie Wagon Day

17th-Lake Superior Day

National Ice Cream Day

National Hot Dog Day

World Emoji Day

18th-Global Hug Your Kid Day

National Caviar Day

National Sour Candy Day

19th-Words with Friends Day

National Daiquiri Day

20th-National Lollipop Day

World Chess Day

National Fortune Cookie Day

21st-National Be Someone Day

World Body Painting Day

National Junk Food Day

Have a great week & call if you need anything!

Serving Him & Loving it!

Carol 😊

Pastor Cassie 678-492-3956

Carol 803-360-7137

The best part is the fact that the little creases on his ankles have tan lines. Too precious!

We had a great visit meeting sweet baby Josie. Thanks to the prayers of our church family, her blood sugar issues have evened out and she is eating and sleeping well.

Thank you for loving on our sweet family!