Celebrating Seniors, Enjoying Life & Laughter

VOLUME 9, ISSUE 50

DECEMBER 12, 2025

'Twas the Night Before Christmas...

One of my favorite things at Christmas is all of the Southern versions of some stories you have known all of your life. I heard one this morning that started like this...

'Twas the night before Christmas in our small Southern town. The last bonfire coal was about to burn out. The stockings were hung with duct tape and care and mama fell asleep with her curlers in her hair.

As you can imagine, it gets crazy after that, ending with a shotgun & Santa vowing to stop bringing alcohol to the Rednecks.

It's true, if you live in the South long enough, you'll see and hear a little bit of everything—especially during the holidays.

Now for the Important Stuff...
