Labor Day Activities

Labor Day is one of my favorite days. There is nothing you have to do. No place you have to go. You just get the day off to spend however you'd like. At our house, it means sleeping as late as you want (we woke up at 6:30 am), drink coffee in bed while you check up on the news (internet & cable were out, so none of that). So, I spent Labor Day doing my favorite thing—Piddlin.

If you're not from the South, you may not be familiar with this activity. It's fairly simple. You do all the little things that make you happy. For me, that means, I rearrange things. I dusted and rearranged shelves, adding wonderful old books to our collection. I set up a proper coffee corner with the grinder, beans, cups, coffee maker, & protein powder, all within arm's reach. I also set up a tea corner with the kettle, cups, and loose teas all together. Yes, there was laundry thrown in as well, but admit it, there is no rock-beating here, so there's time for other stuff. I hope you had as much fun as I did.

Things That Made Me Laugh Today

- What combination of unresolved trauma & dark humor coming out in inappropriate yet hilarious ways am I going to wow them with today?
- Money can't buy happiness? I think you're using money wrong.
- Baby, this heat ain't helping my attitude at all.
- After losing my mind for 6 hours, I've decided it's not that serious.
- The difference between me and Superman is he has super vision. I require supervision.

The Lord is my shepherd because...

- I am a full-time job.
- He definitely has His hands full.
- I am the reason He has the staff.
- I have tested His patience.
- I have ignored several warnings.
- I went off the trail again.
- I am not as self-sufficient as I thought I was.
- Search & rescue knows my name.
- Staying in the lines is not my gift.
- He's getting His steps in because of me.
- He can't leave me alone for five minutes.
- I lack basic survival skills.
- I keep falling in the same ditch.
- I am a flight risk.
- The GPS keeps recalculating.
- I have been known to wander.
- A shepherd was not optional.
- I have opinions about the path.
- He knew what He was getting into
- Sorry for the delay; He had to come get me.
