The Month for Love?

I don't know who comes up with these days to "celebrate", but some of them just don't seem to match up. It's February. Home of Valentine's Day. You would think that would mean there's a lot of "love" stuff happening. Not necessarily...

February is also the home of "Dump Your Significant Jerk Day". Okay, I get it. You thought you were in love, but he turned out to be a creep, so it's time to say bye.

National Weddings Month. I thought that was June, but February is ok, I guess.

The Day the Music Died is on the 3rd. That just sounds sad—not very fitting with a month about love.

Shower With A Friend Day is the 5th. That sounds like something more for the young and in love crowd.

It's Beat the Heat Month. That's sounds like August in South Carolina. February is usually when we get snow if we're going to get any. PSA—we had snow on our back deck from Tuesday to Sunday which means we're going to get more. You've been warned.

Now for the important stuff.
