The Hunt for DB Cooper is Now a Festival

Ok, I had to research this one because I have no idea who DB Cooper is & why he would need his own day. So, if you're as lost as I am on this one, read on. If you already know, then skip it and maybe you'll learn something new next week.

So, here's the deal, on November 24, 1971, DB Cooper skyjacked a Northwest Orient airliner and, after he parachuted out of the plane with $200,000 tethered to his waist, he has never been seen again. His crime is America's only unsolved skyjacking case, and the caper is filled with so many secrets and bizarre twists such as disappearing evidence, missing FBI agent, and 922 folks who have confessed to the crime—that it is ranked in the top-ten of true crime mysteries.
