Do You Bing-Watch?

In 2020, when most of the world was home, the popular activity was a new thing called “bing-watching”. I was at work, hubby was at work, but most of our friends were home watching movies or TV shows for hours at a time. They figured, why not? We were only supposed to be on lockdown for two weeks at most, so why not just have a stay-cation.

During that time Netflix became very popular & folks would watch an entire season of a show in a couple of days. Sounds like fun as long as the snacks hold out.

Those of us who went to work every single day during lockdown were out of the loop on the most popular movies and shows to watch. I still haven't seen Game of Thrones (nor do I want to) & I still have no idea who Carole Baskin is & why everyone hates her.

They tell me that if you watch Netflix for too long the app actually asks if you're still there. Is that a little creepy or a gentle reminder to get up and do something else for a change. I've never been asked. HGTV, yes. Netflix, no.

Luke 7:23 ~ "Blessed are those who are not offended by me."

I Reckon—this doesn't mean yes, it means, I'm tired of this conversation and maybe if I agree, you'll shut up.

Might Could—that's the most useless answer ever. "You coming tonight? I might could." Dude, that's not an answer. That's a riddle.

Fixing to—that means I'm not doing it now, but I want you to think I'm productive while I'm scrolling on my phone.

Directly—that's the South's favorite lie. It could be five minutes. It could be after a nap, supper and two episodes on Netflix.

I ain't got a dog in that fight—that's code for y'all go ahead and argue 'cause I'm gonna be over here minding my business.

Hold your horses—that just means calm down. We can't say it normally. We have to bring farm animals into it for some reason.

Bless it! - that's when something happens & you want to cuss but you can't 'cause mama's in the room. You're just standing there mad.
