

HAPPY EASTER!!

Well, Easter has come and gone and I didn't get to share all of my fun Easter cartoons with you so I may sneak a few in anyway. You all know my brain works a little differently, and that I find strange things humorous. My motto is "if we're going to laugh about it someday, let's just laugh about it now." Now, doesn't that answer a lot of questions about me?

There are lots of fun "celebrations" in April, one of which is Lima Bean Respect Day. Now, I respect a lot of things: my husband, my parents, the flag, the police, but, lima beans? Respect is a bit of a stretch, don't you think? I mean, you have to EARN respect. What has the lima bean ever done to earn my respect?

When I researched this obscure holiday all I found was a really good recipe for cooking lima beans along with facts about how they are an excellent source of protein, iron, magnesium, potassium, and zinc. Yeah, okay, I can appreciate that they contain some good stuff, but I'm still not getting the "respect" part.

The article went on to explain "how to observe Lima Bean Respect Day". It had some pretty simple things we should do.

- Enjoy lima beans with any of your meals as a way to celebrate the day.
- Share a lima bean recipe.
- Plant lima beans in your garden.
- Share your thoughts about lima beans on Social Media.

Really? Share my thoughts about lima beans on social media? Because folks don't think I'm crazy enough? Yes, I have thoughts on a lot of things, but I think it's safe to say that I have already thought more about lima beans this afternoon than I have ever thought about them before.

Ok, now on to important stuff!
