Happy Goddard Day

What is Goddard day? Glad you asked. On March 16, 1926, Dr. Robert H. Goddard launched the world's first successful liquid-fueled rocket from what was, at the time, Asa Ward Farm located in Auburn, Massachusetts. (It's now a golf course.) The 10-foot rocket reached an altitude of 41 feet, flew for two-and-a-half seconds, and fell to the ground 184 feet from the launching frame.

Goddard's final launch on July 17, 1929, was also an historic first. The 11-foot rocket carried an aneroid barometer, thermometer, and a camera triggered when the parachute opened. All three instruments operated successfully and were recovered. The rocket achieved a maximum altitude of 90 feet in an 18.5-second flight covering a distance of 171 feet. There is an obelisk marking the launch site at the 9th fairway between the tee and the green should you be interested in visiting.

Now, aren't you sorry you asked.

Now, on to the important stuff.
